

FER-215, Figure 1

Faults of the Humboldt Bay area from Kelsey and Carver (1988). Faults shown with heavy line are considered to be "probably active" because they offset Neogene geologic units or form distinctive fault-related geomorphology.